All products of this range do not require electrical power to operate and thus are always ready for daily transfer tasks. They are perfectly adapted when the patient just needs to be accompanied.

With NAUSICAA Medical's Manual Handling range, the caregiver can make a transfer as a safe and comfortable help.

It must be privileged rather than motorized transfer whenever the patient's condition allows it in order to encourage patients' mobility and promote independence and dignity.

It helps to fight against the bedridden process and makes simple gestures of everyday life a great way to rehabilitate and socially exchange between the patient and the caregiver.
